Vocational Synthesis

Upon completion of the Configuration Stage, seminarians enter the Vocational Synthesis Stage. This stage “is a gradual realization of the cleric’s responsibility for the care of the souls while he resides full-time in a pastoral setting, usually a parish” (PPF6, no. 137). The goal of this stage is to gradually introduce newly ordained deacons to the daily experiences of priestly life and pastoral service. Ministering in their diocese or religious community, they apply the knowledge, skills, and spiritual development gained in seminary to ministry in the world. SHSST can work with sponsors on placements, benchmarks, rubrics, and training for supervising priests.

Typically, deacons remain enrolled at SHSST during the Vocational Synthesis Stage as they complete select courses in Pastoral Studies and Pastoral Formation. These courses include a Diaconal Preaching Placement, Pastoral Administration, and the Integrating Seminar. Courses are designed to accommodate a sponsor’s desire for the deacon to complete the Vocational Synthesis Stage in his home diocese or religious community while the deacon occasionally returns to the seminary for workshops and seminars (PPF6, no. 143).
